Against the backdrop of domestic health care reform, Congress is gearing up to reform U.S. foreign aid, which encompasses critical HIV/AIDS, reproductive health and maternal and child health programs overseas. Panelists will discuss how integrating comprehensive sexual and reproductive health and rights into the reform debate is critical to the health and well-being of women, men and youth across the globe.

Belle Taylor-McGhee, President and CEO, will be a featured speaker in San Francisco along with Serra Sippel, President, Center for Health and Gender Equity (CHANGE) and Naina Khanna, Director of Policy and Community Organizing, WORLD (Women Organized to Respond to Life-Threatening Disease), and Coordinator, U.S. Positive Women's Network.

This event is sponsored by: Center for Health and Gender Equity (CHANGE), WORLD (Women Organized to Respond to Life-Threatening Disease), U.S. Positive Women's Network, Pacific Institute for Women's Health, and Feminist Majority Foundation.
